Martin Quezada earned an Ethnic Studies degree from Arizona State University in 2001 and a law degree from the Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law at Arizona State University in 2008. Since 2012 he has been elected to either the Arizona House of Representatives or the Arizona Senate.

Ayanna Shambe is a medical student at Saint Louis University. She completed her double bachelor’s degree in Women and Gender Studies and Biology at Arizona State University in 2019. Ayanna is currently working on research on AI implementation in electronic health records and healthcare providers’ communication impact on post-surgical outcomes.

Stephanie Voelker graduated with her B.A. in Psychology and minor in Women and Gender Studies from Arizona State University in 2013. She also received her master’s degree in Social Work at Arizona State University in 2020. Together with Jax Gonzalez, she founded the Menstrual Activist Research Collective (M.A.R.C.) and has developed a series of workshops for faculty, students, and activists about how to promote alternative menstrual products and new menstrual narratives. Stephanie continues to develop menstrual health and sex ed curriculum in conjunction with Planned Parenthood Arizona and Arizona Family Health Partnership. She currently works for the Peoria School district as a school social worker.

Crystal Zaragoza is a first generation queer Latinx that graduated from Arizona State University with a MA in Social Justice and Human Rights (2018) and a BA in Women and Gender Studies (2016). As the previous Health Justice Coordinator for Trans Queer Pueblo in Phoenix, Arizona, they worked with LGBTQ+ undocumented communities of color to transform oppressive health systems. Currently they work with Access Reproductive Care-Southeast in Atlanta, GA. They help Southerners navigate the pathways to access safe, compassionate, and affordable reproductive care by providing financial and logistical support and building power in our communities through advocacy, education, and leadership development.